Biography

At the end of the eighties, and after graduating in Philosophy and Letters from the University of Santiago de Compostela, Ángela de la Cruz (A Coruña, 1965) left her hometown to move to London, where she currently lives. There she began her studies at the Chelsea College of Art and later at Goldsmiths College and Slade School of Art. Since then, her artistic career has continued to provide such remarkable moments as her exhibition at the Camden Arts Center entitled After, for which she was nominated for the Turner Prize in 2010. In 2017 she received the Spanish National Prize for Plastic Arts.
