NICK VEASEY

Biography

Nick Veasey (Reino Unido, 1962) is a British photographer who works mainly with images created from X-rays, some of which are photographically manipulated. He has created hundreds of images using this technique, photographing all kinds of iconic objects and characters, such as Marilyn Monroe, Michael Jackson and James Bond. He worked in the advertising and design industries and continued to work in conventional permanent photography before being invited to make an X-ray for a television programme. Veasey also took an X-ray with the shoes he was wearing that day and, after showing the finished image to an art director, was galvanised by the response it provoked.
